Diplomatic Corps.

Conditions in Europe have caused the diplomats stationed here to select their summer homes and publicly announce the location much earlier in the season than usual. With the experience of the past two summers to guide then and the astuteness in abundance to be found in so diplomatic a diplomatic corps, the allies select one resort while the central European powers take another. The lease is as good as an exemption for other diplomats, and in fact serves as a "keep off," thus doing away with the embarrassing situations which beset society at the outbreak of the war.

The North Shore and the vicinity of Boston again comes in for its share of patronage, and more than a half dozen of the most important powers will be located there.

The French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand will follow their custom of remaining in Washington until late in the season, and if the grave features of war still obtain will make only short journeys out of Washington.

There is never a question as to the location of the Brazilian summer embassy nowadays, for Mme. da Gama prefers her own beautiful place with its sunken sardens, winding walks and wonderful views, combined with the comforts of a real home, to selecting a place at some more central resort. So she and the ambassador will again establish the embassy at Heron Hall, Long Branch, N. J., where they will be near neighbors of the President and Mrs. Wilson when they take possession of their Jersey summer place. Truly the Brazilian flag never floated more proudly over a bit of American soil and claimed it for its own than over beautiful Heron Hall.

The Russian ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff have again taken Stone Villa, Newport, where they spent last summer, and will open the embassy there early in June.

Mr. F. de Mohrenschildt and Baron Renaud d'Ungern Sternberg, the two second secretaries of the embassy, have leased a cottage near the summer embassy, and will thus establish a delightful bachelor headquarters there in June.

Mr. Constantine Onou, who succeeds Mr. Scherbatskoy, who was recently appointed Russian minister to Brazil, as counselor of the embassy, will arrive here in time to enjoy at least part of the Newport season. Both Mr. Scherbatskoy and Mr. Loris-Melikoff, who have been promoted to the rank of minister, will visit Russla before going to their respective posts, Brazil and Siam.

The British ambassador and Lady Spring-Rice have leased Rose cottage at Woods Hole, Mass., and Lady Spring-Rice and the children will go there next month to see the gardens blossom and enjoy the budding of spring, while the ambassador will join them later

The Spanish ambassador and Mme. de Riano will again go to Newport for the summer, and have already made several trips to that resort to get the gardens and residence in fit shape for their residence there early in June.

Mr. Charles E. Tribby has sent out invitations for a reception and dance at the New Willard Hotel. Saturday night. April 29, in honor of his niece, Miss Ethyle Gertrude Offut, whose marriage to Assistant Paymaster Benjamin Farty.
